

INHERITED WEALTH, THEN DISAPPEARED

SUDDENLY LEFT HIS WIFE.

He Had Much Cash and Valuable Jewelry in His Possession When He Went Away, and She Fears He Was Injured and Robbed.

A fortune of $100,000 left to Edward Cooley, after he had spent the greater part of his fifty-four years working as a gardener for $1.00 a day, his wife says, is at the bottom of the mystery surrounding the man's disappearance.

When Cooley disappeared, six weeks ago, he had $800 in bills, a gold watch for which he paid $500, a valuable amethyst and ruby pin and a handsome snake ring.

Cooley's sister died in Bristol, England, a little over a year ago. Cooley got $1,000, the first quarter's rent from the house which his sister bequeathed to him, a month or so later. He gave up his job in Central Park and took his wife to England.

Cooley, being a native of Ireland, didn't like England, and after a short stay in Bristol brought his wife back to America. Now she is seeking him.

Didn't Like Idleness.

Idleness told on his nerves, and two months ago when he was a head gardener on the Birdseye estate at Orient, L. I. He was getting $75 a month.

Early in August Cooley said to his wife that he didn't like his work—don't declare that he had made enemies on the place. Whatever had happened, Cooley disappeared, and his wife believed that he had fallen in the water.

Ever since he had come into his fortune he had carried large rolls of bills, which he displayed on every possible pretext, and Mrs. Cooley thinks the money may have proved his undoing.

When she saw him last—indeed, when he was last seen on the Birdseye estate—he was clad in his overalls and jumper, and his wardrobe had not been disturbed.

"I stayed at Orient a week after he was missed, and watched the waves night and day for some token of my husband," said Mrs. Cooley. "But the very earth seemed to have swallowed him up."

Not a Drinking Man. "He wasn't a drinking man—at least I never heard that he was, and he had no bad habits."

"Maybe somebody killed him for his money, maybe he lost his mind—I don't know—but I do know that he has gone and I want the Evening World to help me find him."

Mrs. Cooley says she married her husband in 1896. She was his second wife. His stepson, who was a clerk, deserted several years ago and came home to live. Mrs. Cooley said that she inherited the house and estate from her father, and after that Cooley absented himself from his home for several weeks. That night, she said, she believed that Cooley may be alive, though she fears for the worst.

LIFE SAVER KILLED AT POST.

Nicola Deleccio 'Run Down by a Train at Crossing & Guarded.

(Special to The Evening World.) NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 22.—After thirty years of work saving pedestrians and vehicles from accidents, Nicola Deleccio, a gate keeper at the Third street crossing of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, was last night instantly killed. He was struck by the westbound freight at the point where he had worked for so long.

Deleccio was looked upon as a trusted veteran of the road. It is on record that he saved a child from the train at a few years ago, and a woman from a passing train. He was an approaching train.

LORD & TAYLOR HAVE FIFTH AVENUE ENTRANCE.

Famous Old Firm Makes Addition to Its Store by Which It Extends Through Whole Block.

A notable addition has been made to the business establishments which have displaced old New York residents on Fifth avenue below Twenty-third street. Lord & Taylor yesterday threw open an addition to their great establishment by which they now have entrances on Fifth avenue, at Nos. 128 and 131, as well as at the old familiar location on Broadway.

Now every one of the eight floors and basement runs through the entire block—from street to street—and every one of these floors presents a vision of fairyland in their colorings, their furnishings and their rich, varied lights. In opening this Fifth avenue store and connecting it with the store on Broadway Lord & Taylor have added 45,000 square feet to their old establishment, which in itself was a enormous store. The added portion is fifty feet front on Fifth avenue and runs back a hundred feet.

It is the purpose of Lord & Taylor to make their store a permanent beauty spot, when, summer and winter it will have those attractions which are so pleasing to women. Now that it has a front on Fifth avenue, women shoppers who come in carriages will not be subjected to the great crush on Broadway. There are no courtesies, varied lights, on Fifth avenue to frighten horses and push vehicles from the track. There is no excitement, no noise, no ostentatious hubbub on Fifth avenue. Through this new entrance to Lord & Taylor's women can come and work in the same ease and comfort they would have in their own homes. Lord & Taylor in having their store extend through to Fifth avenue have looked to the comfort of their patrons.

The Fifth avenue entrance was no sooner thrown open yesterday than shoppers began passing through the doors in constant streams, but without crowding or jostling. They found the first floor a vision in white. There were lace, silks, ribbons, garments—everything white from the ceiling to floor, from counters to walls.

But it was the second floor that attracted the women most. Here is a beauty in coloring, in furnishings and in arrangements. The carpets and the draperies are in dark green, so restful to the eye. Comfortable seats are everywhere, convenient and inviting for tired shoppers.

The third floor is used for rugs, and the other upper floors for the accommodation of various departments. The Fifth avenue entrance promises in Lord & Taylor's store a new vision in retailing.

PARENTS FORGIVE COUPLE WEDDED ON FAST EXPRESS.

Telegram Blessing Mr. and Mrs. Balch Catches Them After Ceremony Is Performed by Half-Shaven Minister.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—A telegram of parental forgiveness was sent to overtake the swift-flying Adirondacks Express, on which Miss Rose Lynch was married to W. Dell Balch while the train was moving fifty miles an hour.

The bride's parents, strongly opposed to the match, were cleverly outwitted, and when assured that the ceremony had been performed sent their blessing.

Mr. Balch is president and treasurer of the Balch Bros. & West Co., a large printing concern, and Miss Lynch was his bookkeeper. Few, if any, suspected that the head of the firm had fallen in love with his employee. The most surprised were the young woman's parents, and from the first they set their heads against the match.

It was decided that the young woman should be sent to the Adirondacks to forget her lover, and she agreed to the trip so readily that the parents were encouraged. They went to the train with her and it was with a breath of relief that they saw the fast express start northward.

Little did they know that in the town of Remsen Mr. Balch was searching high and low for a minister. He had taken the train ahead and had agreed that the head of the firm had fallen in love with his employee. The most surprised were the young woman's parents, and from the first they set their heads against the match.

At last he found a Baptist minister in a barber's chair. There was hardly a moment to be lost, and the situation was hurriedly explained.

"But I'm only half-shaven," protested the minister.

His excuse didn't work, and he was hustled out of the chair, with a beard on one side of his face, and into a carriage. They reached the station just in time.

A stateroom was engaged and the ceremony was performed while the train was a op speed. At Forestport the minister left the train, giving the couple his blessing. Mr. and Mrs. Balch continued to the mountains and will spend their honeymoon there.

LOCKJAW KILLS A LITTLE GIRL

Child of the Tenements, Her Playground Was a Glass-strewn Vacant Lot, and Death Followed a Cut Hand.

In mute anguish little Agnes McGuinness, four years old, died in the J. Hood Wright Hospital early to-day. A week ago, in company with her sister, she was driven from the steps of her house, No. 638 West One Hundred and Fifty-second street, where she was playing. The girls then went to a nearby lot. Agnes in her romping fell upon a broken milk bottle. Lockjaw set in yesterday and all efforts to save her life failed.

Mrs. McGuinness, the child's mother, received notice a month ago from the agent of the tenement in which she lived with her two children and her husband that unless she paid her rent, $5.50 a month, she would be evicted. And Mrs. McGuinness would have been evicted but for the birth of another child.

The woman's poverty, coupled with her physical distress, softened the heart of the agent, and the family was allowed to remain for the time being. The father of the dead girl has had a run of unbroken hard luck for a year and he could do nothing for his family.

The tenement in which the Hugheses live and one other are the only structures of the kind in this neighborhood, all the other houses being of a higher grade. The neighbors object to the noise of children on the street, and frequent complaints have been made. The outcome of it all was an order not to allow children living in the Hughes tenement to play on the house steps. So they did the next best thing. They used the lot nearby, covered with the refuse of broken glass and castaway tin.

A week ago when Agnes returned to her home with a brand, still ill, used the ordinary home remedies to dress the child's wound. The physician who attended her recommended that she send the little girl to the hospital at once, as the wound had a serious look.

He attended the child, but neither the father nor the mother would allow Agnes to be taken from the house. Yesterday the child's condition grew alarming. During the afternoon there were marked indications that tetanus had set in and the girl was taken immediately to the J. Hood Wright Hospital. Hardly had she been placed in bed when her jaw set. She died this morning.

CHARLES THOMPSON MISSING. The New York police have been notified to look for Charles Thompson, thirty-two years old, who has been missing from Atlantic City since Thursday last. He is 5 feet 6 inches tall, wears a black coat, silk hat and light check trousers.

Alcohol in Liquid Kidney Remedies Hastens Disease.

PAUL TRAUBE, JR., CURED OF KIDNEY DISEASE AND BLADDER COMPLICATIONS.

Aug. 26, 1903, Paul Traube, Jr., 219 Longworth St., Cincinnati, O., wrote: "For many years I have been afflicted with pains in my back, the result of kidney and bladder complications. I tried several remedies without results. I was induced by my druggist to try Dr. Pettigill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, and almost from the beginning received much benefit."

All druggists are fully authorized by the proprietors of Kidney-Wort Tablets to give the following guarantee: "So confident are we that Kidney-Wort Tablets will cure every form of kidney disease that purchase money will be cheerfully returned if sufferers are not relieved after one bottle. ## AGED WOMAN LOST; HER MEMORY GONE

Policeman Finds Her Trying the Doors in Street and She Fails to Remember Her Name or Address.

An aged woman was found wandering on Fourteenth street, between First and Second avenues, early to-day, her memory almost gone. Woe from walking, she was taken to the station-house and turned over to the care of the matron, while detectives started out to find her home.

Policeman Devins, of the East Twenty-second street station, saw her going from door to door, each time uttering a low cry of distress when she found the house was not her home. When he questioned her she was so excited that she could not remember her name.

The matron calmed her at the East Thirty-fifth street station, and she said she was Margaret Dunley and that she lived with a Mrs. Synder in Fourteenth street, near Fourth avenue. She said she was more than seventy years old, but she looked more than eighty.

She was well dressed and her face was kind and motherly. She said she had been to spend the evening with friends, but had lost her way and her memory had failed her. Policemen could not find a Mrs. Synder in the neighborhood, and no report of a missing woman had been sent to Headquarters.
